

An Ode to Water

Clean water is a necessity of life. We are mostly made of water and we call our earth 'the blue planet' because so much of its surface is water. Poets have always written special poems to things, people, ideas or places that they love. This kind of poem is an 'ode'.

Can you write an Ode to Water? First make a list of the things you love best about water. Each one can become a line of your poem.

Here is my list:

Pushing my hands through blue swimming pool water

Raindrops on cobwebs

Wet pavements

Ice-cold tap water in winter

Soft dark green pond water
